BIG GATHERING OF GRANGERS

About 200 Members of New London County and Quinebaug Pomona Granges Were Fresent-Class of 25 Gets Fifth Degree-Open Session in Afternoon With Open Meeting.

At 2 o'clock the afternoon session was opened by Worthy Master Barnes and it was at once turned over to Prof. C. A. Wheeler of the Connecticut Agricultural college, lecturer of Quinebaug Pomona, who had charge of the programme for the open session. The quartette from Mansfield grange, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wheeler, Mrs. L. A. Clinton and C. J. Grant, sang Shoogy Shoo to the delight of the gathering and were obliged to respond to an encore.

Forestry was the subject of State Forester S. N. Spring, who stated that he had been in this state since last October, previous to which he was lo-cated at Washington with the govern-

Mr. Spring said the great problem is the conservation of the forests. This work, he said, had been pushed by Gifford-Pinchot, who is a wealthy man and has given both time and money to the work. The supply of standing timber in the United States will not last the generation out, the supply possibly lasting twenty to thirty years. There is a very large number of people who depend upon the lumber industry, and at the present time three times as much timber is being cut per acre as it is possible to grow. There is bound to be a shortage and a decrease in timber lands, as east of the Mississippi river agriculture will cut out considerable of the forests.

It is up to the individual to improve the forest land he had. He referred briefly to the fire warden service in this state and said that during the past year but 15.000 acres bad been Mr. Spring said the great problem is this state and said that during the past year but 15,000 acres had been burned over, and of that amount but 1,000 acres were in New London county, the cost of putting out the fires in the state being $2,555.

While the lumber industries ty, the cost of putting out the fires in the state being $2,555.

While the lumber industry has taken the forests rapidly, and the supply is in danger, yet there is a great amount of waste, as only about one-third of the timber is actually used. The portable sawmill works havec, but it cannot be objected to, as the timber is there to be cut, but the waste of the wood should be stopped. To improve the situation, trees can be planted in this state, and he explained at length how at Rainbow, Conn., extensive planting of white pine seedlings has been done and there are trees in varying ages there. It is found that it is necessary to give the seedlings three years' growth before they are set out for themselves, and also it is found that by giving trees more room and light they grow faster and better. Just how much this will show must be determined by experiments.

The lecture was illustrated and numerous views showing forests in this and other countries as well as fine timber supplies in this state were shown. Dairying for Profit.

Dairying for Profit.

Dairying for Profit.

As the second speaker, Prof. J. H. Trueman of the Connecticut Agricultural college was presented, his topic being Dairying for Profit. He said that the farmer is entitled to profit for his labor, although at times it does not seem as though he considered this point. Dairymen will say there is no money in selling milk at three and one-half cents a quart, which many of them do, and make a living. They have been successful farmers up to a certain point, but have they kept up their buildings, bought new horses, an auto if necessary, and had the pleasures that other people have who are getting day wages?

ures that other people have who are geiting day wages?

If the farmers believe they should have just as good pay as other people, they should get after it and get it. Farming is the ideal life and education and thinking will help as much there as in other lines. Dairying is one of the ways to get money to make the farm successful. The people must be prosperous and happy to make successful farmers.

It costs from $110 to $125 to keep a cow and do it properly, whilch also includes taxes, improvements and getting the product to market, while there must also be a sum charged of

After the singing of Good Night by the quartette in fine voice, State Master L. H. Healey was presented and spoke to the joint meeting, stating that this is an important, year with the granges, being the silver anniversary of many of them, including the state grange, He referred to the starting of the grange movement in 1867-68. There has been a remarkable growth in Connecticut in the past quarter of a century and agriculture has made a remarkable advance. It is the practice of such advice as we have received to day which makes perfect results and these things which are for the betterment of our business must be adopted. In legislation the grange has not been recognized as it should be and they should set forth with determination and get what they deserve. Among other things the grange favors ship substdy. He urged upon the members the consideration of educational matters at the grange meetings and not to give too much time to the social features.

State Lecturer Sherwood of Easton. Conn., spoke briefly on the personal responsibility of the members and also those of the lecturers upon whom much depends in the way of arranging instructing and profitable programmes.

New Bridge at Montville. A meeting of the members of the board of selectmen will be held at the residence of Charles Ramage in Uncasville Friday morning, to discuss the advisability of constructing a road and bridge between Uncasville and the property on the north side of Haughton cove. Owners of property in Kitemaug and Massapeag feel that they cannot obtain any tangible results from their holdings until more direct means of communication with the other portions of the town and with transmeans of communication with the other portions of the town and with transportation lines is offered. With this proposed road and bridge a rapid development of that part of the town, those interested say, is certain to come about. It is expected that the owners of property in that section will meet selectmen and state their ideas.
